Risk Warning: Past performance is not indicative of future results. Our investment management services relate to a variety of investments, each of which can fluctuate in value. The value of portfolios we manage may fall as well as rise, and the investor may not get back the full amount originally invested. The investment risk vary between different types of instruments. For example, for portfolios denominated in foreign currencies, changes in the rate of exchange may cause the value of investments, and consequently the value of the portfolio, to increase or decrease. In the case of a higher portfolio volatility, the realized loss upon redemption may be high, as the investment's value may decline substantially. In making an investment decision, prospective investors must rely on their own examination of the merits and risks involved. Outlook

We are moderately constructive on the outlook for risk assets over the medium term. On the macro front, the Fed has resumed its easing cycle and has delivered 2 rate cuts since September 2025. This provides liquidity support to the markets. On the earnings front, the 3Q 2025 US earnings result is constructive with an elevated percentage of companies reporting positive earnings surprise. Looking forward to 2026, analysts are projecting double-digit earnings growth for US companies. While there are positive signs, there are also potential risks such as the circularity or AI-related capital flows as well as spreading of credit losses and potential resultant concerns on banks. We are watching for signs for improvement in market breadth to support the thesis of a sustainable equity rally.

With President Trump at the helm, policy uncertainty is likely to remain elevated and there could be bouts of volatility as market participants react to policy measures announced by the US administration. Stewardship via active management and disciplined risk management is key to navigate the ever-evolving investment landscape.
